

Expanding on the success of the NATPE TV Producers' Boot Camp we are now entering our 5th year and launching the inaugural LATV Festival. This three day festival takes place July 25 -27, 2007 at various L.A. locations. As part of the LATV Festival, NATPE is also building on last year's successful Diversity Fellowship Program.

With this program our goal is to provide up-to-date information, case studies and coaching on best practices within the TV industry, so producers and writers from diverse backgrounds can better navigate this business and continue their career development.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARD

For this year's event, NATPE in partnership with FOX Entertainment would like to extend a scholarship to one NALIP member for the 2007 Diversity Fellowship Program. The chosen fellow will be awarded the following:

- A customized program of workshops and meetings with Fox Networks Group executives on Wednesday, July 25
- A registration to the 2007 NATPE TV Producers' Boot Camp on Thursday, July 26 and Friday, July 27 including the following activities:
  - ✓ Panel discussions, presentations and workshops on traditional and new platforms and genres led by working television executives and producers
  - ✓ Roundtable chats with development executives
  - ✓ Interactive clinics where attendees will receive coaching on pitching, strategy and project development
  - ✓ Access to the NextGen TV Competition celebration reception, where the best short form content created by emerging producers will be showcased
  - ✓ Pitching opportunities with networks, production and distribution companies
  - ✓ Invaluable networking opportunities (Last year's event had over 65 TV executives and over 50 studios )
- Three night stay at the Orlando Hotel in West Hollywood, CA for the nights of Tuesday, July 24, Wednesday, July 25 and Thursday, July 26.
** The chosen fellow is responsible for his/her own transportation, including flight to and from Los Angeles.
